

Marketing Dispatches From The SEO Idiot: A Failed Affiliate Marketing Blogs Archives on SEO and More

In late 2014, marketer James Himsa started The SEO Idiot blog with an idea that he could shake things up in affiliate marketing. It failed. This is a compilation of the posts that once made up that blog and are now here for display. They are frank, conversational, and all about internet marketing, making money online, Clickbank, and more. The discussions range from how to market, to why no one makes money with certain affiliate marketing products. It also discusses SEO and other elements of online business. It is no longer online, which is why this Kindle format was crafted. If you want to have an honest encounter with SEO protocol, here is what you need to know.
