For ages 6 & up. Fiddling worms? Worms that play the fiddle? Those are some of the questions any child might ask when you mention Fiddling Worms, but its actually a great way to get fishing bait. This short story tells how a grandfather teaches his grandson an old-timey technique to catch worms so they can spend the afternoon fishing. Great story for children who love nature, fishing, and learning about science. Interesting science project for people who hike and camp near lakes to teach their children or grandchildren. Also, Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts can use this technique while at summer camps.
